M O R E O V E R,

There are sundry familiar LETTERS and VERSES running all in Proverbs, with a particular Tome of the British or old Cambrian Sayed Sawes and Adages, which the Author thought fit to annex hereunto, and make Intelligible, for their great Antiquity and Weight:

Lastly, there are five Centuries of New Sayings, which, in tract of Time, may serve for Proverbs to Posterity.

TO HIS

Charles the Second,
THIRD MONARCH
GREAT BRITAIN, &c.

SIR,

KING is like the Sun in the Firmament,
They Both may be clouded for a time, and so hindred to shoot their rayes, But, the cloud being blown over, They shine afterwards with more lustre and Glory, the One in his Orb, the Other in his Throne: A sadd cloud hath hung long between your Majesty, and your three Kingdoms, which now by blessed Heaven is quite dispell'd, for it could be no other but the Beames of Heaven that did it, In regard that the sayed dismall cloud having continued above twelve yeers, and put such a Sea of separation twixt you and your subjects, was scatter'd in lesse then twelve houres, to the wonderment of all mankind: At first it grew ruddy and drop'd into bloud, specially at Worcester Fight, where, Sir, the gretest of your Rebels did often confesse that Cesar himself

The Epistle,

never gave a braver Charge then your Majesty did; your Deliverance, and Escape was afterward no less then miraculous, which made every one foretel that your Majesty was reserv'd for Great Things; And indeed it was easy for any well-weigh'd man to be a Prophet, that matters wold come at last to this passe, The peeple finding out daylie how they had fool'd Themselves into a slavery, and feeling more and more the difference 'twixt an Iron rodd, and a Golden Scepter.

The sayed fatall clowd began to condense first in the Scottish Clime fomented by French air, and so got over the Tweed: and though your Royall Father breath'd his last in it, yet, (to hold on in the first high-fetch'd Comparifon) His Jet, like the Sun at his declension, may be sayed to be more Glorious then his Rise.

And now, Sir, among those myriads of Loyall Soules who rejoyce at your Majesties return, I am one who upon the knee of a panting heart, as well as those of the Body doth send up flaming oblations of thankfullnesse to just Heaven for this Great and seasonable Blessing, which with the spring doth cherish the Spirits of all peeple, so, that, I beleve England will be warn'd hereafter, What it is to be without Her King.

It remains now that I implore your Majesties Royall Goodnes to cast some gracious influences upon this large peece of Industry, which, in regard it is of a publique concernment, and tending to the Honor of the English Nation as well as of the Language, being associated by the Civillst Towns of Christendom (wherein your Majesty is so well vers'd as also in the nature of the peeple) I thought fit to cast at your Majesties feet as a Sacrifice of my tru Alleageance; And humbly take leave to conclude with the famous prophecy of Grebner a great Modern Mathematician, whose prædictions are so highly cryed up all Europe over (in regard that divers of Them are already fulfill'd) Among which This signall prognostique relating to these Northwest Islands is found,

A U T H O R,

Touching the Association of the English-Tounge, with the French, Italian, and Spanish, &c.

FRance, Italy and Spain, ye sisters three
Whose Tounge are branches of the Latian tree;
To perfect your odd Number, be not shy
To take a Fourth to your society,
That high Teutonick Dialect which bold
Hengistus with his Saxons brought of old
Among the Britains, when by Knife and Sword
He first of England did create the Word;
Nor is't a small advantage to admit
So Male a speech to mix with you, and knitt;
Who by her Consonants and tougher strains
Will bring more Arteries 'mong your soft veins,
For of all tounge Dutch hath most nerves and bones,
Except the Pole, who hurles his words like stones.
Some felsen that when our Protoplastick fire
Lost Paradis by Heavens provoked ire,
He in Italian tempted was, in French
He fell a begging pardon, but from thence
He was thrust out in the high Teuton Tounge,
Whence English (though much polish'd since) is sprung.
This Book is then an inlaid peece of Art,
English the knots which strengthen every part,
Four Languages are here together fix'd,
Our Lemsters Ore with Naples silk is mix'd,
The Loire, the Po, the Thames and Tagus glide
All in one bed, and kisse each others side,
The Alpes, and Pyrenæan mountains meet,
The Rose and Flower de luce hang in one street:
Nay, Spain and Red-cap't France a League here strike, 1658.
If 'twixt their Kings and Crowns there were the like,
Poore Europe should not bleed so fast, and call Turbands at last unto her Funerall.

THe Peeples voice the Voice of God we call,
 And what are Proverbs but the Peeples voice?
 Coin'd first, and current made by common choices
 Then sure, they must have weight and Truth withall;
 They are a publike Heritage entayld
 On every Nation, or like Heritages sayld,
 Which passe from Sire to Son, and so from Son
 Down to the Granchild till the world be don.
 They are free-derisions by long descent,
 Without the Grace of Prince or Parliament;
 The truest Commoners and Inmate Guests,
 We fetch them from the Nurse, and Mothers breasts,
 They can prescription plead gainst King or Crown,
 And need no Affidavit but their own.

We thought it then well worth the pains and cost
 To muster up these Ancients in our Host,
 Which here like surbilled medalls we present
 To all that breath in Christendome and rent.

WORDS are the Souls Ambassadors, who go
Abroad upon her errands too and fro;
They are the sole expounders of the mind,
And correspondence keep 'twixt all Man-
They are those Airy keyes that ope, and wrest (kind;
Sometimes the locks and hinges of the brest,
By them the Heart makes sallies, wit and sence
Belong to them, they are the Quintessence
Of those Idēas, which the thoughts distill
And so calaine, then melt again, untill
They drop forth into Accents, in whom lies
The salt of Fancy, and all faculties.

The world was fram'd by the Eternal Word,
Who to each Creature did a name afford,
And such an union made 'twixt words and things,
That every name a nature with it brings;
Words do involve the deepest Mysteries,
By them the Jew into his Caball pries,
The Chymick sayes in stones, in herbs, in words,
Nature for every thing a cure affords;
Nay, some have found the Glorious Starrs to be
But letters set in an Orthography,
The Fate of Kings and Empires to foretell,
And all things else below could we them spell;

That

That Gran Distinction between Man and Brute,
 We may to Language chiefly attribute,
 The Lion roares, the Elephant doth bray,
 The Bull doth Bellow, and the Horse doth Neigh,
Man speaks, tis only Man can word, create,
 And cut the Air to sounds articulate
 By Natures speciall Charter; Nay speech can Make a shrewd discrepance 'twixt Man and Man,
 It doth the Gentleman from Clown discover,
 And from a Fool the Grave Philosopher,
 As Solon said to one (in judgement weak)
I thought thee wise untill I heard thee speak:
 For words in Man, bear the most Critick part,
 We speak by Nature, but speak well by Art,
 And as good Bells we judge of by the sound,
 So discreet Men by words well-plac'd are found,
 Therefore it may be call'd no vain pretence,
 When 'mong the rest the Tongue would be a sence,
 The Tongue's the Rudder which mans Body guides
 While on this worlds tempestuous Seas he rides:
 Words are the life of Knowledge, they sett Free,
 And bring forth Truth by way of Midwifry,
 The activ'st Cretures of the teeming brain,
 The Judges who the inward man arraign,
 Reasons chief Engin and Artillery
 To batter Error, and make falsehood fly,
 The Canons of the mind, who sometimes bounce
 Nothing but war, then peace again pronounce:
 The Rabbins say, such is the strength of words,
 That they make deeper wounds then spears or swords:
 This Book may be then call'd a Magazin
 Of Armes and words, it keeps and doth combine
 Four Tongues, tis like a frame on divers wheels,
 One followes still the other at the heels,
 The smooth Italian, and the nimble Frank,
 The long-lung'd Spanish march all in a rank,
 The English head's them, so commands the Van,
 And reason good in this Meridian,
 But Spain brings up the Rear, because we know
 Her Counsels are so long, and pace so slow.

To the true PHILOLOGER,

Touching the English (or Saxon) with the three Sororian
Toungs, French, Italian and Spanish;

Of their Originalls, their Growth, their Changes, Interpolations and present Consistence, &c.

Whatsoever is comprehended within the vast volumes of Nature, or apprehended by Human Understanding, may be divided to Things, to Words; This small Division, though it consist but of two Monosyllables, is adequat to the whole Univers, and extends to whatsoever hath Existence or Essence within Trismegistus Circle, nor doth it terminate there, but it mounts up to the Empyrean Heaven, to the Celestiall Hierarchy, nay, it reacheth to Chymeras, and such Idæas that have no other subsistence but only in the Imagination;

The first, viz. Things by mediation of Accidents are the object of Sense, the second, viz. Words by the mediation of Sense are the objects of the Intellect, for if we give credit to the Philosopher, Nihil est in Intellectu, quod non prius fuit sub Sensu: Words may be said to be the meer Creatures of the Mind; they are the purest emanations of the Soul, her Interpreters, her chiefest Agents, and Engines to knock down falshood, and assert Truth, By them she useth to make her fallies abroad, and shew Nature the difference that is twixt Brute Animals and the Rationall Creature, who hath the sole prerogative of cutting the air into Articulate sounds, by Them we suck in all knowledg, for as Syllables are made of Letters, Words of Syllables, and Speech of Words, So Speech turns to Notions, Notions to Knowledg, and Knowledg to Speculation, which is pabulum animæ, the food and Nectar of the Soul, Now, these Speculations in the cells of the brain without utterance of Speech, are like rich wines barr'd up without bung or vent.

Moreover, observable it is, that, as afirst the Creation one of the chiefest benedictions which it pleas'd God to confer upon Man, was a faculty to impose words, and call all creatures by their names, which were Signatures at first of their Natures, (nor only so but some words have whole Histories in them) So after the great work of Redemption, the prime and most miraculous Blessing which dropped down from Heaven upon the holy Apostles was the gift of speaking many languages for the propagation of that soul-saving Knowledge of Christian Faith; Yet, though we read that the speaking of many Toungs was a benediction in the New Testament, we read as well that it proved a malediction in the Old, when the swelling extravagant fancies of man thinking to have made mortar and stone to have touched Heaven, this foolish towering presumption was battered down by a multiplicity, and confusion of Toungs, which hath prov'd a kind of curse ever since, for how much would it add to the happiness of Mankind in point of attaining reall Knowledg, as also for mortall Society, Negotiation and Commerce, nay, to the advantage of Religion it self, if there were but one Language spoken upon both the Hemispheres of the Earth as was at first, for then that time we spend now in learning of Words, which are but air, might be employed in Realities.

At the beginning, as Antiquaries tell us, that multiplicity of Toungs increas'd from one to seventy, but now it may be well sayed, and sayed within compass, that they are multiplied to seventy times seventy, if we take in all Dialects, and Sub-dialects, whereof Asia long since did so abound, that of those two and twenty Toungs which Antichrist King of Rome is so much fam'd to have spoken, most of them were Dialects, and that upon no great tract of Earth, for 'twas not the fourth part of Asia. But in the New-found World in America, 'tis wonderfull what is reported; for in that vast Continent, which is thought thought to be of as large expansion as the other three, Observing Travellers have related, That one cannot crosse a Mountain, Wood or River of any bignes, but the Inhabitants on both sides have a differing Dialect, and Idiom of Speech.

Touching Europe, Glottographers tell us (as you shall find it more amply in a Book call'd Epistola Hoeltiana) that she hath eleven Originall, Independent, and Mother-Toungs, wherof the Teutonic or High-Dutch, and the Latin are two; The English or Saxon (for thers no other name for it in Welsh and Irish to this day) is a Dialect, or rather a Sub-dialect of the first; The Italian, Spanish, and French Toungs are Dialects of the latter, which may be expresd in these Hexameters.

Anglica Teutonicæ Proles comptissima Linguae :
Gallica Lingua nihil nisi Lingua squama Latinæ ;
Lingua Hispana nihil nisi Lingua squama Latinæ ;
Itala Lingua nihil nisi Lingua squama Latinæ.

Let not these three noble Languages take it for a disparagement that this word squama is applied unto them, for the Chymist will tell them that squama is the flower of Metalls as well as the parings, &c. The Englishman is High-Dutch capapie from top to toe go to the parts of his body inward and outward, together with his coverings and clothes; he is Dutch in drinking, in eating, at bed and at board, by sea also and by land when he steers a ship or drives the plough, In his numbers, in the dayes of the week, in his kindred, in the Church and holy things he is Dutch, &c. But in Hawking, in Hunting, in Heraldry, in Fencing, in Riding, in Painting, in Dancing, in Music, in Aires he is all French; Insomuch that it cannot be denied but if the English Toung shold repay unto the Dutch, and French all she owes, she wold prove a stark Bankrupt, and be as bare as Esops Crow. Nor is it any derogation for the English language to be descended of the High-Dutch, or Teutonic, which is so ancient a Maternall Toung, that Beccanus thinks twas the Language of Paradis, and the Italian did merrily twitt him in that opinion when he sayed, that twas the Toung wherein Adam was cast out thence, being a rough and Cartalaginous or boany Speech in regard of the collision of so many Consonants, that if a man were to be worded to death, or stoned to death by words, the High-Dutch (or Pole) were the fittest; Some draw the pedigree thus, the English came of the Saxon, the Saxon of the Dutch, the Dutch of the Slavonick, the Slavonick of the Persian, the Persian of the Caldaic, and the Caldaic of the Hebrew.

So much touching the Originall, now, touching the growth and changes of the English Toung from time to time, I shall take the Dominicall prayer for my instance as it was spoken nine hundred years ago, as that sagacious, and sedulous Antiquary Mr. Cambden hath it, which prayer ran then as followeth, and is here compared verbatim with the present English.

Uren fader thic arth in heofnas, (Our Father which art Heaven) sic gehalgud thin noma (be hallowed thy name) to cometh thin Ric, (come thy Kingdom) sic thin willa sue is in heofnas, and in eorþo, (be thy will so as in Heaven, and in Earth) Uren blaf ofer wirtlic sel us to daeg, (our loaf substantiall give us to day.) And forgef us scylda urna, (And forgive us our debts) sue we forgefan scyldgum urum (as we forgive debts ours) And no inlead us in costnung (and not lead us into temptation) Ah gefrig urich from isle (but deliver us from Evill.)

This was found among the records of Eadfride Bishop of Lindisfarne or the Holy Hand, translated afterwards to Durham, and it was in the year 700. before the Holy Scriptures were divided to Chapters, for Stephen Langton Archbishop of Canterbury did that first, and Robert Stephen long after did subdivide them into verses; but about two hundred years after the Lords prayer ran thus; Thu ure fader the eart heofenum, si thin nama gehalgod, cum thin ric, gewarþ thin willa on eorþan swu swa on heofenum, syle us to deg um deþ hanglican blaf (or daily bread) And forgif us ure gyltas (trespasses) swa we forgifath urnun gyltendun, (our trespassers) And ne led the us on costnung (temptation) Ac alys us from ysle, si it swa (so be it.)

About

About 160. yeers after, in the raigh of Henry the second the Dominical prayer was thus, as it was sent by Adrian the fourth (who was an Englishman born, whose name was Breckspere as I take it) and it ran in Rime because the Common people might retain it the better.

Ure fader in Heaven rich
Thy name be halyed ever lich,
Thou bring us thy michell blisse,
Als hit in heaven y doe,
Evar in yearth beene it also.
That holy bread that lasteth aye,

Thou send it ous this ilke day,
Forgive ous all that we have done,
As we forgive ouch other mon,
Ne lett us fall into no founding,
At shield ous fro the fowle thing.

A M E N.

About two hundred yeers after, in the Reign of Richard the Second, it came to be thus, according to the Translation of Wickliffe; Our fader that art in Heaven, hallowed be thy name, thy kingdom com to, be thy will done so in Heaven as in earth, gif to us this day our bread over other substance, and forgive us our dettes as we forgoen our detters, and leed us not into temptation, but deliver us from evill, Amen. In this Translation we find that there are some French words crepd in, as dettis, detters, temptation, deliver.

Touching the refinings, interpolation and enrichments which the English Tounge hath receavd from time to time, it is to be considered that Languages as well as other notions of the mind use to proceed to a perfection by certain degrees; The Latin Tounge remaind in a kind of barbarisme nere upon 500. yeers till Cesar, Cicero, Salust and others did refine her, and brought her to that purity we now read her in; So did her daughters the Italian, French and Spanish till the first was refined by Dante, petrarca with Boccace (his scholler,) and Ariosto; The French began to be polishd in the reign of Philip de Valois, Marot did something under Francis the First, but Ronsard under Henry the Second did more then both. Now the English came to that perfection, and fullnes that she is now arrivd unto, by adopting to herself the choicest, best sounding, and significant words of other languages, which in tract of time were enfranchizd, and made free denizens as it were of England by a kind of Naturalization, But she hath more of the French then of any other because of the Norman Conquest, Insomuch that for the speaking of eloquent English 'tis a great advantage to understand French, whence she hath her gentlest words, which was the ground of the old proverb Jack wold be a gentleman could he speak French; Therefore though the Root of the English language be Dutch, yet she may be sayed to have bin inoculated afterwards upon a French stock, and she thrive so well that she did reingrafte upon divers words, as chiefly upon chief, faultry upon fault, preciseness upon precise, (which are not found in French) with a great number more; but som Critiques observe that she takes the liberty to altar sometimes the sense of the words which she borrows; as she useth crank for being lively and well, whereas 'tis sick in Dutch, she useth bid to require or command, whereas in Dutch tis to pray or entreat, she useth Rogue for a rascall &c. whereas in French tis used for a bragger or highminded man; she useth nice for unwilling or averse, whereas tis Idle in French with divers besides; Moreover they tax her that she wants single words for sundry things which she expresth by way of paraphrase, as an old man, a woman with child, a looking glasse, a peece of bread and butter, &c for which there are single words in other touns, yet for som things she hath differing proper words which others want, as the Italian and Spaniards have no toes but fingars on their feet, nor can all France, Italy, or Spain find a word for a smock though they all three love it well enough. Nor doth the English language enfranchise French words only, but divers choice expressive words from the Italian, and Spaniard with others, Insomuch that she may be sayed to be Dutch embrodered with French and other touns, or she may be sayed to be like one that garhers sweet flowers out of divers banks, and beds to make a nosegay; But tis a thing that gravells all Antiquaries how so many Greek words shold be found in the English tounge, being the same both for sense and signification, as edris, rain, καλίσ I call, γασσι grasse, θύρα a door, φάουλ foul, ὅλ whole, νέ new, κίσα to kisse with a great many more: The probablest reason that may be given for this, is that the

Greek

Greek being a great mercantile tounge, and the most spacious for trading in times past of any on earth, som of that Nation for traffique sake migh come here or to Saxony. And not many ages since there was a Colony of Grecians in Marseilles in France and another in Calabria in Italy. By these applications and borrowings of choice exotic words the English may be sayed to be one of the most copious languages on earth, nor in point of native eloquence as for Allegories, Tropes, Agnominations, Metaphors and the constant pursuit of them doth she yield to any, as also for soundnes and strength of poeticall fancies, so strong, that the soft melting phrases of other tounge are too weak to gird them about.

Concerning the Originall of the French-tounge tis taken pro confesso by all, that she is sprung of the Latin while Rome kept three and twenty legions of Roman soldiers many Ages within her bowels, who with the Countrey may be sayed to have conquered the language also which was calld the old Celtique, and is thought to be the same that the remnant of the old Britains now speak in Wales; Touching the Changes which the French Tounge hath receivd, ther be divers Instances producd in my Epistle to the Reader before Cotgraves Dictionary; she hath divers Dialects as the Gascon, Picard, Provensall, that of Fersey, Guernsey, and low Normandy, that of Liege, and the Walloon who calls it Romand, as the Spaniard calls his Romance; and considering the ayrie and volatil humor of that Nation it is to be wondred that their language did receive no more changes, ther having bin so many externall causes that concurrd thereunto, as the continuance and coalition of the English so long among them, the voyages that six of their Kings made to the Holy Land, the warrs, and weddings, with their Neighbours and the great company of Strangers that kept still in the Queens Court; But at this time the French is arrivd to a great pitch of perfection, purity and sweetnes; Ther was a contest not long agoe which spoke the best French, the Kings Court, the University, or the Lawyers, and the Courtier carried it, the other two favouring the one of Pedantry, the other of Chicanery or Sophistry.

Touching the Italian tounge she may be calld the topbranch or eldest daughter of the Latin, and she resembleth her mother more then the other two, which made King James say that the Italian was nothing els but the Dative and Ablative Cases of the Latin; she is held the smoothest, the civillst, and charmingst vulgar Tounge of Europe; For the first, she hath not one word that ends with a consonant throughout the whole body of the language, unlesse it be som small monosyllable præpositions and conjunctions, which makes Her the more fluent, and smooth, this made the German, for retorting of a geere which was cast upon the roughnes of his Tounge, by being that wherein Adam was thrust out of Paradis, to say, that the Devill had tempted Eva before in Italian, and he went further that he thought all the playsterers at the building of the Tower of Babel were Italians: The Italian may be also calld the Courtliest language of Christendom, or the Imperiall Cæsarean language, for by the Golden Bull he is not capable to be Emperour unlesse he hath knowledg of the Italian tounge.

Touching the changes and Dialects of the Italian Tounge ther's no Language hath more, and this may be imputed to the severall sorts of governments, and soverain princes which are up and down the Countrey, as the Greek dialects were ascribed to the diversity of so many Ilands; In Italy ther is the Roman or Court-dialect, the Toscan or Florentine, the Venetian, the Milanese, the Piemontese, that of Bologna, the Parmazan, the Luquese, the Napolitan, the Genovese, the Calabrian, &c. whereof the two last are the most harsh, and degenerat. In Calabria they will say queddo cauaddo for quello cavallo, fog, mog for fuoco, moglie, the languages of Sardinia, Sicily, and Corfica may be sayed likewise to be Italian Dialects, but the prime and purest Italian is Lingua Toscana in bocca Romana.

Concerning the Spanish, Romance, or the Castillian language it may be sayed to be nothing els but Latin inlayed with Morisco (and som few old Gothic words) For the Moors kept there nere upon 700. yeers, a fair time to corrupt a language; Ther is no Speech wherein the tounge and the text do more agree, none that is freest from Apostrophes which may be calld the thrumbs of a language; she is also an open, and masculin high lofty language, so high that she may be sayed to go upon stilts, she is also a wary, and paw-fing sing long-lungd language, delighting in leafurly prolotion, and long words, she bestows five syllables upon a batt calling him murciélago, a snuffer hath six despaviladera, a granfire is tartarabuelo; Now, whereas the Italian and French endeavour dayly to go further off from the Latin, the Spaniard makes it his ambition to make a neerer approach unto Her, and if the Morisco words were garbled out she wold be nothing but Latin, which may be calld mundus & mundanus sermo for her large extent, and neatnes; And there may be Instances made both in prose and verse that will be pure congruous latin (which cannot be don in Italian and Spanish, much lesse in French) as I have shewd in my Instructions for forren Travell.

Touching the changes and variety of Dialects in the Spanish Tounge, the Lusitanian or Portuguez is the chieftest, ther is then the Gallego, the Andaluz, the Biscainer and the Batueco, a new Pagan Nation discoverd of late yeers in the very center of Spain among the Mountains nere Toledo, which two last have another very ancient language of their own that hath no more affinity with the Spanish then the British hath with the English, and 'tis thought to be the Originall language of Cantabria or Spain; But the prime Castilian Dialect is that of Toledo (as that of Siena is in Italy, and the Aurelian or that of Orleans in France) And if ther be any debate or doubt about the tru sense of any Spanish word a Toledano is to be the expounder, and Judg thereof; Touching the Kingdoms of Valencia and Catalonia, their touns may be sayed to be more properly Dialects of the Gascon.

Now, concerning this large, and long-spund Peece of Industry, the main division of it is into three parts, whereof every one hath bulk, and matter enough to make a considerable distinct Volume of it self; The first is a fower-toungd Dictionary, where the English doth head the French, Italian and Spanish the three noblest languages of Europe, and they all fower come without any interruption of Etymologies, or Proverbs (which are also here in Tomes by themselves) immediately one after the other, and this will prove a great advantage to Memory in regard of the affinity and consonance they have one with another in thousands of words, as to dispute (in English) disputare (in Italian) disputer (in French) disputar (in Spanish) to contend, contendere, contendre, contender; to establisth, stabilire, establir, establecer; a school, scuola, escole, escuela, with multitudes more, which coming so immediately one after the other will be a great help to the retention of memory, and to carry away all the fower with more ease.

Nor will the Reder here be sent twice upon one arrand as other Dictionaries use to send him, putting him to a double labour, If you look for a badger, he wil not turn you to seek a brock, nor from a brock to a gray, nor vice versa, when you wold desire whats Spanish, Italian, or French for thorn back he will not make you go a fishing for seate or ray; If you wold know whats French, &c. for a blister, he will not turn you to a wheale, push or pimple, but every word though it hath many Synonymas will satisfie you by it self, and not make you tumble the leafs so-often for one thing which will put one to an Impatience.

The second Volume is a large Nomenclature of the peculiar and proper termes in all the fower languages belonging to severall Arts, to the most generous sort of Recreations, to all professions both liberall, and manuell from the Engineer to the Moustrapmaker, from the Marchant Adventurer to the cryer of matches; Here you have in all the fower touns, the termes of Heraldry, of Horsemanship, of Hunting, of Hawking, of Warr, the termes of Chymistry, of Architecture, of Navigation, not a Cable, or rope in a ship but you haue it here, you shall find here all the Knighthoods and Religious Orders of Christendome, with 50. severall distinct sections, a work most usefull for all that pretend to knowledg, curiosity and true eloquence, specially for Orators and Divines which use to illustrat things by familiar comparisons, and similes, for the prime part of eloquence is to give all things their proper termes.

The third Volume is of the choicest proverbs in all the sayed Touns, consisting of divers compleat Tomes, and the English translated into the other three, with divers familiar Letters in every one consisting all of proverbiall speeches after a new mode. Ther is also a particular Tome of the British, or old Cambrian Proverbs which the Author thought fit to annex for their great Antiquity and weight; And among these proverbs ther are many hundred in each tounge that never knew Presse before; Lastly ther are five hundred new sayings, which with the revolution of time may serve for Proverbs to after ages : Let the Judicious Reder observe besides, that in this new Lexicon and Nomenclature ther be very many recent words in all the fower languages which were never inserted in Dictionary before, It is now above forty yeers since Florio, Cotgrave, and Minshew compild theirs, but ther be divers words got into those languages since ; Touching the English, what a number of new words have got into her of late yeers which will be found here ; as stumming of wine, clover grasse, regalos, treatment, mobby, punch, perino, (Carribby Ilands drink) picaro, peccadillio, pantaloone, vogue, Quakers, Seekers, Levellers, Trepanners, piqueering, plundring, storming, Excise, &c. and others which got in during the reign of the Long Parlement.

All these things being well considered, and weighed in the balance of an unbiaffed Judgment, I may promise to my self that this treble Volume will be judgd a work that will conduce much to the publick Good, (which is the white I aynd at all the while) as also to the honor of the Nation, and of the English tounge for three respects. First, because she is put into the front of the civillst languages of Christendom, and as it were incorporated with them ; Secondly, because it will be an occasion hereby to accreditat her the more, and make her expand, and spread further abroad by mixing with these spacious languages ; Thirdly, because it will take off those aspersions whcih useth to be cast upon Her, that wheras the Genius, and wit of a Nation is much discern'd in their proverbiall speeches, the English tounge is dry and defective in this particular, and those Proverbs she hath are but flat and empty. The contemplation of these particulars did much heighten the spirits of the Author, and lighten the burdea of so tedious and tough a task all the way.

The Printer to the severest sort of Reders.

IN regard of the absence sometimes of the Author to supervise, and for want of able Correctors in so many differing languages under this Insulary Region cut off from the rest of mankind, ther will be som erratas of the Presse found up and down in this first Impression : But tis to be hoped that the Generous and discreet Reder, without stumbling at every straw, or making mountains of molehills, will passe by such light faults, and go still on to the full sense of the thing without any descanting overcriticall humor ; For tis a Rule full of good Morality that is to be observ'd in the reding of books, Agnosendum quod bene, ignoscendum quod secus, acknowledg whats good, excuse whats otherwise.

L'Imprimeur au Lecteur Critique.

EN l'absence quelques fois de L' Auteur pour en avoir la surintendance, & a faute de Correcteurs assez adroits en tant de Langues sous ce Climat Insulaire retrenché du reste du monde, Il n'y aura pas suiet de s'estonner, si quelques errates de l'Imprimerie, se soyent glissez en ceste premiere Edition ; Mais il est a esperer, que le lecteur genereux, & discret, sans broncher a chaque paille, ou en faisant collines de taupineries, ne s'arretera pas a tells petis obstacles, mais qu'il passera rondement plus outre jusques au sens entier de la matiere sans se rendre trop Critique : Car cest une Reigle pleine de bonne moralite qu'on devroit observer in la lecture de Livres, Agnosendum quod bene, ignoscendum quod secus, Il faut reconoitre ce qui est bien, & excuser ce qui est autrement.

Lo Stampatore al Lettore Giudizioso.

Nell' assensa dell' Autore qualche volte per haverne la soprantendenza, & mancandoci anco Correctori assai sapevoli in tanti linguaggii sotto questo Clima Insulario troncato dal resto del mondo non ci è da meravigliare si qualche errati della stampa si trovino in questa primiera Editione, Mà, è da sperare, ch'il Lettore generoso, & sagace, senza intopparsi a ogni paglia, o facendo montagne de talpinerie, passara sempre più auanti fin' al sentimento intiero d'ogni materia, senza rendersi troppo curioso, o critico ; perche, nella lettura de libri, ci è una regola piena de buona moralita, Agnosendum quod bene, ignoscendum quod secus.

El Imprimidòr al Letor prudente.

EN el ausencia del Autor algunas vezes por auer la sobreintendencia de la Obra, y por falta de Corregidores harto platcos en tantos lenguajes debaxo de este Clima Insular rajado del resto del Mundo, No aurà de que espantarse si algunos yerros de la Imprimeria se topen en esta primera Edición ; Mas esperanças ay, que el Letor generoso, y juizioso sin trompcarse a cada paja, passará siempre mas adelante hasta el sentido entero de la cosa, sin hazerse Critico, o Curioso en demasia, porque en la lectura de libros ay una regla llena de buena moralidad, que se deve observar, Agnosendum quod bene, ignoscendum quod secus.

The Letter A. being the most natural motion, and ouverture of the lips; Being also, according to Cicero, the letter of Absolution, and comfort, doth well deserve the priority of all the rest, as indeed it hath in all languages; La lettre A, estant le plus naturel mouvement, & l'ouverture des levres; Estant aussi, selon Ciceron, la lettre d' Absolution, & de joye, merite bien la preface de toutes les autres, come elle l'a en tous langages; La lettera A. essendo il piu natural movimento, ed apertura delle labbia; Essendo anco, secondo Cicerone, la lettera d' Absolutione, ed allegrezza, merita ben la precedenza de tutte le altre, comm' ella ne ha in ogni linguaggio; La letra A, siendo el mas natural movimiento, y abertura de los labios; Siendo tambien, segun Ciceron, la letra de Absolucion, y consuelo, merete bien la precedencia de todas las demas letras, como ella la tiene en todas lenguas.

The letter A, hath two sounds in English (which it hath in no other Tongue) the one open and cleer, as All, stall, the other more close, as Ale, stale; La lettre A, a deux sons en Anglois (ce qu'elle n'a point en aucune autre langue) l'un ouvert & clair, l'autre plus serré; La lettera A, in Inglese ha due suoni

(ma in nessun altro linguaggio) l'uno aperto & chiaro, l'altro piu serrato; La letra A, en Ingles (mas en ningun otro lenguaje) tiene dos prolationes, una abierta y clara, otra mas serrada.

A, is also a prepositive article in English (and in no tongue els) before words beginning with a consonant, as a Book, a Cock; but before words beginning with vowels, there is n, added, as an Eagle, an arbour; La lettre A. sert d' article prepositif en Anglois devant les mots qui comencent par consonantes, mais s' ils comencent par voyelles on y ajoute n; A serve per articolo prepositivo in Inglese (ma in nessun altro linguaggio) avanti le parole chi cominciano con consonante, ma cominciando con vocale s'aggiunge n; A serve de articulo prepositivo en Ingles (pero en ningun otro lenguaje) delante los vocablos que comiençan con consonantes, mas començando con vocales se añade n.

There is a proverb in French which makes much for the honor of A. viz. Il est marque à l' A, He is marked with A, that is, He is a perfect honest man; Il y a un proverbe en François qui tend à l'honneur de l' A, viz. Il est marque à l' A, qui veut dire, Il est honnest' homme tout à fait; Gli Francesi hanno un proverbio, per l'honore d'A, viz. Egli è Segnalato con A, che vuol dire, Egli è molto huomo da bene; Ay un refran en Francés por la honra de A, viz. Está señalado con A, es a saber, Et muy hombre de bien.
